CHOREGRAPHERS:

NICOLE BURDETT

Nicole Burdett is a dancer, choreographer, model, and actress. She began her career in New York City after graduating from AMDA's Dance Theatre Conservatory. She continued on to perform in the NYC contemporary Nutcracker under the artistic direction of Giada Ferrone. She worked as a swing for Norwegian Cruise Line in productions such as Vegas The Show by Tiger Martina and Paradis' by Patti Wilcox. Nicole made her music video debut as the lead performer in the "Goddess" music video by country music artist Jake Sutton. She continues to train in various styles of dance while also teaching and choreographing for studios along the east coast. As a model, Nicole can be seen in campaigns for The Makeup Academy NYC where she modeled for various industry professionals.

MACKENZI BOLYARD-PIZAÑA

Mackenzi Bolyard-Pizaña is a dancer, acrobat, choreographer, dance educator, and actress. Her professional career began when performing and training with local company Trutek Dance and Cleveland Dance Project. In Los Angeles she worked and trained with the industry's top choreographers and dancers in companies and projects such as IAF Jazz Project under Chehon Wespi-Tschopp, Academy of Villains under Pharside and Krystal Phoenix Jennings, and MusEffect under Jessica Starr. Mackenzi has performed and toured with Lucent Dossier Entertainment and Shade Productions. Mackenzi is currently full time company member performing with The Chicago Honey Bear Dancers under Greg Schwartz. Mackenzi can be seen in music videos with artists Dara Rollins, Capture, and Jordan Hollywood and in Showtime series Penny Dreadful: City of Angels.
